REPORT FROM THE COMMISSION TO THE EUROPEAN PARLIAMENT AND THE COUNCIL

on the working of committees in 2023

1. INTRODUCTION

The Commission presents its annual report on the working of committees in 2023 in line with Article 10(2) of Regulation (EU) No 182/2011 laying down the rules and general principles concerning mechanisms for control by Member States of the Commission's exercise of implementing powers¹ (the 'Comitology Regulation').

The report gives an overview of developments in 2023 in the 'comitology' system, which refers to the committees that the Commission consults on draft implementing acts. These committees are composed of Member States' representatives and chaired by the Commission. They follow different operating procedures depending on the relevant basic legal act empowering the Commission to adopt implementing acts (see Table II).

The report provides a summary of the committees' activities. It is accompanied by a staff working document containing detailed statistics on the work of the individual committees for each policy sector². It highlights the main changes and trends observed on an annual basis, presenting overall figures on meetings, written procedures, opinions delivered (i.e. positive, negative or no opinion) and acts adopted. It also provides an overview of cases referred to the appeal committee and the exercise of the right of scrutiny by the European Parliament and the Council under Article 11 of the Comitology Regulation. Information is also provided on the measures adopted under the regulatory procedure with scrutiny.

2. OVERVIEW OF DEVELOPMENTS IN THE COMITOLOGY SYSTEM IN 2023

2.1. General developments

In 2023, comitology committees continued to operate under the procedures set out in the Comitology Regulation, i.e. the advisory procedure (Article 4) and the examination procedure (Article 5), as well as the regulatory procedure with scrutiny set out in Article 5a³ of the Comitology Decision⁴.

All meetings, regardless of their format (in person, remote or hybrid), are listed as meetings in the Comitology Register⁵, and the summary record specifies the format of the meeting.

² As covered by the Commission departments dealing with the respective policy areas.

³ For further details on the use of this procedure, see Section 3.5

⁴ Council Decision 1999/468/EC of 28 June 1999 laying down the procedures for the exercise of implementing powers conferred on the Commission (OJ L 184, 17.7.1999, p. 23).

⁵ <https://ec.europa.eu/transparency/comitology-register/screen/home>

As to the alignment of acts still referring to the regulatory procedure with scrutiny to the legal framework introduced by the Treaty of Lisbon, in 2023, interinstitutional discussions on the Commission's proposal⁶ did not achieve progress towards aligning the remaining basic acts.

As regards the Commission proposal of 14 February 2017⁷ aiming to amend the Comitology Regulation concerning the appeal committee, and notably to address 'no opinion' situations in sensitive areas⁸, no progress was possible in 2023, given that the respective positions of the European Parliament and the Council (the 'co-legislators') remained far apart.

The Commission continued to make draft texts for important implementing acts public for a 4-week period, allowing stakeholders to submit comments. In 2023, 73 draft implementing acts were published for public feedback on the 'Have your say' website⁹, which is almost identical to the 2022 figure (72).

2.2. Case-law developments

As regards the transparency of the work of comitology committees, in case T-201/21 (Covington & Van Vooren vs European Commission), the General Court upheld the line it set out the previous year in joined cases T-371/20 and T-554/20 (Pollinis France v Commission)¹⁰, both cases currently under appeal). The General Court was invited again to examine the Commission's refusal to grant access to documents (under Regulation (EC) No 1049/2001¹¹) that indicate individual votes of the Member States cast in the context of a comitology committee. In its judgment of 14 June 2023, the General Court decided that votes by Member States within a comitology committee must be considered as being cast 'as part of deliberation and preliminary consultations' within the Commission concerning the draft implementing act in question. Therefore, the exception to access to documents laid down in the second subparagraph of Article 4(3)¹² of Regulation 1049/2001 is applicable to documents reflecting individual votes of the Member States. The General Court, however, took the view that the reasons put forward in the contested decision by the Commission could not justify, in the circumstances of that case, the application of the exception laid down in the second subparagraph of Article 4(3) of Regulation 1049/2001. In the view of the Court, it could not be demonstrated that

⁶ Proposal for a Regulation of the European Parliament and of the Council adapting a number of legal acts providing for the use of the regulatory procedure with scrutiny to Articles 290 and 291 of the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union, COM (2016) 799 final.

⁷ Proposal for a Regulation of the European Parliament and of the Council amending Regulation (EU) No 182/2011 laying down the rules and general principles concerning mechanisms for control by Member States of the Commission's exercise of implementing powers (COM (2017) 085 final).

disclosure of the requested documents would risk to seriously undermine the decision-making process in question. The General Court annulled the decision refusing access to the requested document. The Commission subsequently lodged an appeal against the judgment.

In its judgment of 28 February 2023 in case C-695/20 (Fenix International Ltd vs Commissioner for her Majesty's Revenue and Customs), the Court of Justice made two observations of general application on implementing powers. The case concerned a request for a preliminary ruling on the validity of Article 9a(1) of Council Implementing Regulation No 282/2011, based on whether or not the Council supplemented or amended Article 28 of the VAT Directive 2006/112/EC¹³, thus exceeding the implementing powers conferred on it by Article 397 of that Directive, under Article 291(2) of the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union (TFEU). First, the Court recalled that when it comes to the use of Council implementing powers, Article 291(2) TFEU requires a detailed statement of the reasons why that institution is entrusted with adopting the act in question. Second, it noted that the considerations relating to the limits of the Commission's implementing powers are also valid where such powers are conferred on the Council, given that Article 291(2) TFEU draws no distinction as to the nature and scope of implementing powers based on the institution on which they are conferred. The Court of Justice noted that the implementing powers conferred on the Commission or the Council under Article 291(2) TFEU entail, in essence, the power to adopt measures that are necessary or appropriate for the uniform implementation of the provisions of the legislative act on the basis of which they are adopted and which merely specify the content of that act, in compliance with the essential general aims pursued by that act, without amending or supplementing it, in its essential or even non-essential elements¹⁴. The Court ruled that the contested implementing regulation did not breach any of these principles and could therefore be upheld as valid.

3. OVERVIEW OF ACTIVITIES

The figures indicated in the following sections are all based on the findings presented in detail in the accompanying staff working document.

3.1. Number of committees

This report focuses exclusively on comitology committees, which have been set up by the legislator to assist the Commission in its exercise of the implementing powers that have been conferred upon it by basic legal acts. Other entities, in particular expert groups set up by the Commission itself, are not covered in this report.

Table I shows the number of comitology committees that existed during the period of 1 January to 31 December 2023¹⁵, with the figures for the previous year added for comparison.

¹³ Council Directive 2006/112/EC of 28 November 2006 on the common system of value added tax, OJ L 347 11.12.2006, p. 1.

¹⁵ Some committees existed only during part of the year depending on the exact start/end of the validity of their basic legal act.

In 2023, there were 334 comitology committees, including committee configurations¹⁷. This represents a small increase in the number of committees as compared to 2022 (when there were 322 comitology committees), reflecting the establishment of new committees by legislation which entered into force in 2023.

Table II shows a breakdown of the committees in 2023 by type of procedure under which they operated (i.e. advisory procedure, examination procedure, regulatory procedure with scrutiny). Committees with multiple procedures are indicated separately.

3.2. Number of meetings and written procedures

The intensity of committees' activity is primarily defined by the number of committee meetings held and written procedures¹⁸ conducted. These are shown in Table III.

There were 650 meetings in 2023, which is slightly less than in 2022 (when there were 673 meetings), and 1 242 written procedures, which is significantly lower than the year before (when there were 1 675 procedures).

¹⁸ Committee voting can take place at a regular committee meeting or, in duly justified cases, by written procedure, in line with Article 3(5) of the Comitology Regulation.

3.3. Number of opinions and implementing acts

This report also gives an indication of the specific output of the committees, which is another important indicator of the level of activity.

Including opinions delivered by the appeal committee. To avoid double-counting, adopted implementing acts passing through the appeal committee are counted towards the first-level committees in the respective policy areas. See also Section 3.4 and Table V.*

¹⁹ As regards adopted implementing acts, the indication of Commission departments (policy areas) means that the acts in question were prepared (discussed and/or voted on) in a committee managed by the respective Commission department; in some cases the actual adoption of the act was formally ensured by another Commission department.

²⁰ A vote resulting in 'no opinion' is counted in the total number of opinions as this is one possible outcome in the committee.

Table IV shows overall figures on the formal opinions delivered by the committees and the subsequent implementing acts adopted by the Commission²¹. It also indicates the cases where either the European Parliament or the Council have exercised their right of scrutiny under Article 11 of the Comitology Regulation.

The committees delivered 2 039 opinions²² in 2023, which is a small decrease compared with 2022 (2048). Similarly, the 1 916 implementing acts adopted following a committee procedure were fewer than in the previous year (2072).

The European Parliament and the Council have a right of scrutiny under Article 11 of the Comitology Regulation. In 2023, the European Parliament adopted eight resolutions based on Article 11 of the Comitology Regulation, all of which concerned acts by DG SANTE. The Council did not exercise its right to oppose a draft measure under this provision in 2023.

3.4. Meetings of the appeal committee

As shown in Table V below, the appeal committee met 10 times during 2023, and discussed 22 draft implementing acts which the Commission referred to it. Voting at the meetings in all cases and not using written procedures, it delivered a ‘no opinion’ in all 22 cases²³. The Commission adopted all 22 implementing acts following the appeal committee vote, with 3 of them adopted in 2024.

TABLE V — ACTIVITY OF THE APPEAL COMMITTEE

Commission department	Number of meetings/written consultations of the appeal committee		Number of opinions ²⁴ of the appeal committee		Number of acts adopted following an opinion of the appeal committee

TRADE	1/ 0	0	1 (1)	0	1	0
TOTAL:	11/6	10(0)	13 (13)	22 (22)	11	19

²¹ The number of opinions and implementing acts/measures in any given year can differ; the reasons for this are explained in the introduction to the accompanying staff working document.

²² The overwhelming majority of the votes in the committees were positive, whereas a ‘no opinion’ was delivered in 31 cases (including those eventually referred to the appeal committee). There was 1 negative vote delivered (on labelling requirements of the novel foods α -cyclodextrin and γ -cyclodextrin) and consequently the draft act was withdrawn by the Commission.

²³ Further details are available in the accompanying staff working document.

²⁴ The term ‘opinion’ also includes the scenario where the formal outcome is a ‘no opinion’ meaning that there is no required majority in either sense. The number of ‘no opinions’ is indicated in parentheses.

3.5. Use of the regulatory procedure with scrutiny

The Comitology Regulation maintained the effects of the regulatory procedure with scrutiny for the purposes of existing basic legal acts referring to it²⁵. This procedure can no longer be introduced into new legislation, but it still appears in many existing basic legal acts and will continue to apply under those acts until the respective empowerments have been aligned to empowerments for either delegated or implementing acts.

In 2023, 57 measures were adopted under the regulatory procedure with scrutiny (see Table VI), which is less than in 2022 (when 68 measures were adopted). The right to oppose acts under the regulatory procedure with scrutiny was used once in 2023, by the European Parliament. For comparison, in 2022, the co-legislators did not use this right.

4. CONCLUSION

The committees continued to work in 2023 at a similar level of intensity as the previous year. There were 334 committees, which held 650 meetings, carried out 1 242 written procedures and delivered 2 039 opinions, leading to the adoption of 1 916 implementing acts and 57 measures under the regulatory procedure with scrutiny. Enabling Member States to exercise their control powers in line with the Comitology Regulation, the committees provide valuable assistance to the Commission in exercising the implementing powers conferred on it by the co-legislators.

The Commission invites both the European Parliament and the Council to take note of this report.
